HAYES ALL STRUNG UP

Dogs fans will be disappointed with the dislocated shoulder suffered by utility Andrew Hayes last weekend.

Now, so too will be the fans and fellow team mates who would be found at The Lion Hotel in North Adelaide where the former Rugby League player and Sydney Swan could often be heard displaying both his acoustic and vocal talents during a regular Sunday afternoon set.

MYSTERY CROWD REVEALED

For those who follow SANFL crowd figures closely, (ie safooty.net's Buns for Crowds competitions) it's been a hard week waiting to find out exactly how many turned up to Elizabeth for the Central v Norwood Clash.

Well after days of investigation (actually just a phone call to the Bulldogs) FOOT-e TIMES SA can "exclusively" reveal the official crowd was 4,026

TRAFFIC TO TEST BASS

As well as being in charge of the Redlegs, coach Nathan Bassett is also tied up with the FiveAA crew, calling AFL games here in SA. Not only will Bass be pushing for his side to get a win against the Eagles on Saturday afternoon, he will also be hoping for a good run with traffic lights straight afterwards.

Once coaching duties are completed at Coopers Stadium at around 4:45pm, the former Crow then needs to make the mad dash down to AMMI Stadium before 5:30pm for involvement in the Pre-Game Show, leading into to the clash between Adelaide and the Western Bulldogs.

NIGHT FOOTY BRINGS A CROWD

It was a big lineup at the Bay for their night footy launch. Spotted pre game on the ground to "push the button" together were Kate Ellis (in Glenelg scarf), the Federal Member for Adelaide, Steve Georganous (in West scarf) the Federal Member for Hindmarsh and City of Holdfast Bay Mayor Ken Rolands.

LOST DOGS

On a sour note, it has been sad to hear about the recent passing of some very good people involved with the Central District Football Club. Noel 'Feathers' McIlhatton, a long serving official, Ladies Auxiliary stalwart Bev Reiman and more recently, long time and passionate supporter Stewart Banks are no longer with us anymore but all will be watching their beloved Doggies from above.

Mr Banks may be remembered from couple of seasons ago as he was the Central's fan that suffered a heart attack during a clash against North years ago where the ambulance had to enter the ground to attend to him, halting the game for a brief, but necessary, period.

Condolences to all the family members of those mentioned above and the CDFC, from all the team FOOT-e TIMES SA.

BLOODS PREVIEW

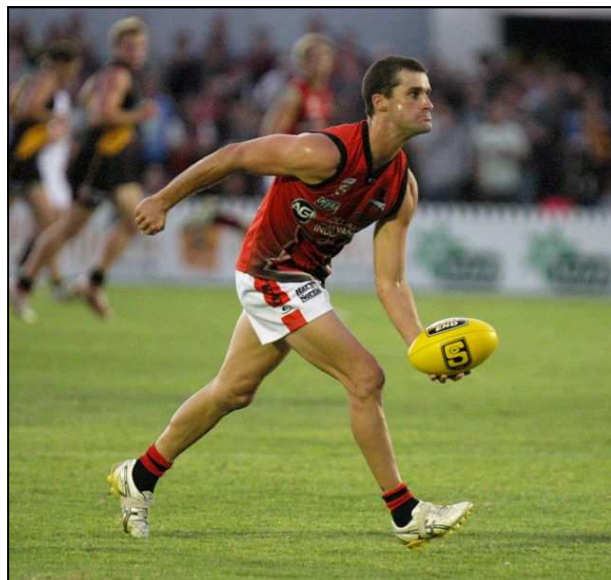

By John Nankivell

West takes to City Mazda Stadium for their first home game of season 2012 on Thursday night against Central District, and what a big test it promises to be.

It is a test however that is not beyond the Bloods. A year ago the two sides met underlights and it was West Adelaide who recorded a big victory. Time may have passed, but West Adelaide are still a strong chance to repeat the dose on Thursday

The Dogs were less than impressive in their loss to Norwood last Saturday night. At the moment they still look like being a few weeks away from top form. While West too is coming off a disappointing effort against the Bay they were not disgraced.

The Bloods will however need a significant lift in certain areas if they are to win. One of which is goal kicking. Westies had 22 scoring shots on the weekend but could only manage 7.15; an effort which cost them dearly. Central like Glenelg last week will not let them get away with kicking like that.

Photos by Peter Argent

In Round 1 the Bloods had a poor first half before running away with the game after half time. Last week it was the other way around. Despite trailing narrowly at half time I thought the Bloods had looked a little smoother going forward than Glenelg. But after the main break West fell apart kicking just three goals to the Tiger's seven. To beat Central the Bloods will have to be switched on for the full four quarters.

West will be close to full strength going into this clash, where as the Dogs are missing some key players something that the Bloods need to exploit to their advantage.

If ever the Bloods are going to knock off Central it will be this week, and I'm going to stick my neck out and say they will. West Adelaide by 10 points.

BULLDOGS PREVIEW

By Phil Aspinall

CENTRAL District fans would be a little apprehensive ahead of this Easter Weekend clash against the Bloods, tonight at City Mazda Stadium, Richmond. The Dogs have kicked off their season with both a 20 point loss to Norwood, at Elizabeth for the first time in nine seasons, and more injury concerns to deal with.

Early season question marks are again being placed on the Bulldogs and whether or not they have the depth to again cover the increasing and extensive injury list. Losing some flexibility due to the dislocated shoulder to Andrew Hayes, coach Roy Laird will again need to tinker his line up to find the right defensive and attacking mix, capable of kicking a winning score.

Forward line potency and quality midfield delivery was something the Dogs could not find last week and the club will expect a lift in these areas against West tonight. With less key position strength and forward line potency this season, the small brigade for Central will need to work harder and contribute more offensively.

Of the five debutants to play last week, Paul Marschall impressed most with his very precise foot skills and endeavour at the football and should keep his spot this week, while high profile recruits Tom Collier and Jackson O'Brien both showed it may take a couple of weeks for them to adjust to the pace and standard of the SANFL.

In the corresponding game between these 2 clubs last year, West Adelaide kicked off their season with an eleven goal victory but tonight, they would be expecting a Dogs side hungry to atone for a poor showing last week. The Bloods themselves have had a bit of an up and down start to 2012 with a big second half win over South Adelaide and then last week, a disappointing away loss to Glenelg.

While it is often said games of football are won and lost in the midfield, I do feel these two sides do match up reasonably well through the middle with the home side maybe just having slight advantage in the ruck through Ryan Willits, especially if the injured Jason Sutherland doesn't come up for the Dogs.

The likely match up of Westies skipper Ryan Ferguson on Matty Westhoff and the battle of the clearance kings in James Boyd and Jimmy Ezard will more than likely have a significant bearing on final result. The visitors will need to also find a quality opponent for Aaron Fielke who has had a good start to the year for the Bloods.

Not since 1990 have Central opened a season with 2 consecutive loses. I feel that the Dogs do have a strong enough defence to counter the Bloods forwards and with a lift from some underperformers, we should see the visitors bounce back with a hard fought and close first up victory for season 2012.

Two teams rebounding from losses at night last round, and both will have the corresponding fixture from last year in their minds, where West spanked Central and sparked thoughts of them playing in the major round. Things took completely different turns for both teams not long after, but one interesting intangible here is that by the end of this game, West will still be yet to play in daylight hours this season. That factor may just switch the balance to them in an intriguing clash. West by 14 points

Peter Argent

On round two performances both teams have a fair way to go. The Bloods game style is questionable and certainly not pretty to watch! Central District have to find a way to kick a winning score. In round one last year the Bulldogs were smashed. They have long memories. Expected to be a dour affair, the margin should not be any more than two to three goals. Central by 13 points

Don Cooper

This should be a more than interesting contest under lights on Thursday night. Can a side which played low percentage, indecisive and inefficient football last week in West Adelaide redesign their game plan to over come a Central District outfit in the midst of a mini rebuilding phase?? Well, I don't think we'll see an eleven goal margin, but I do believe the Bloods are better than what they displayed against Glenelg. West by 19 points

Kyle Smith

It appears I have inherited the Lou Richards "Kiss of Death" judging by my results so far. Surely Central cannot lost their first two matches of the season - amazingly the last time that happened was in 1990, when they were 0-3 after three. I think at this early stage of the season, the teams are yet to sort each other out, so nothing is a sure bet. However, a safe bet is a Central win. Central by 20 points

Phil Herden

An underdone Doggies side will bounce back against a Bloods outfit still struggling for consistency. Whilst not sure who is going to kick the goals for Central the Bloods defence is not as good as Norwood's. Central by 12 points.

PANTHERS PREVIEW

By Don Cooper

Well, what a difference a week can make!! The Panthers certainly can testify to that following a complete turnaround in form against North Adelaide at Prospect Oval last Saturday which, in many ways, signalled the emergence of the South Adelaide we were expecting to see in Round One.

The challenge for the Panthers will now be to further improve on their home soil against this week's opponent, the Double Blues in the SANFL's first ever Good Friday encounter.

South Adelaide's "tradesman-like" ruck combination of Daniel Bass and Keegan Brooksby will be put to the acid test this week and will need to – at the very least - nullify the influence of Sturt's inform pair of Angus Kurtze and Joshua Jenkins.

That said, they provided enough presence for their high calibre on-ballers, namely Toby Stribling, Joel Cross and Nick Liddle & co to dominate the terra firma tussles against the Roosters and create the required forays to go within a whisker of the magic twenty goal mark – a ploy which looms as being the Panthers' signature game style this season.

Andrew Ainger will be all the better for his confidence boosting seven goal haul and on that form will prove a real headache for the Double Blues defence. Peter Rolfe stepped up to provide the ancillary firepower required last week and he will need to reproduce those sorts of efforts to ensure South don't present as a one dimensional forward set up.

The Panthers' defence looks more solid with the inclusion of Josh Thewlis to support Bradley Crabb and he may well be the man to shut down the highly dangerous Tim McIntyre.

The corresponding match last year was a four point thriller in favour of the home side - and while I can't see the margin being much more, feel the tables will be turned this time.

DOUBLE BLUES PREVIEW

By Don Cooper

The Double Blues could not have hoped for a better start to season 2012 than what they delivered last Saturday at Commander Centre Oval – thrilling the home crowd with a sterling victory over the Port Adelaide Magpies.

Now only six days later, Sturt head south to the open spaces of Hickinbotham Oval to test their metal against a re-emerging South Adelaide – and a real chance to let their free running game unwind.

But how Seamus Maloney goes about adapting the nearly 1:1 kick to handball ratio of last week to the extra real estate on offer will be an interesting factor of the game.

One thing in favour of the Double Blues being able to open the game up on this ground will be the vastly improved disposal by foot which tore the Magpies apart so clinically.

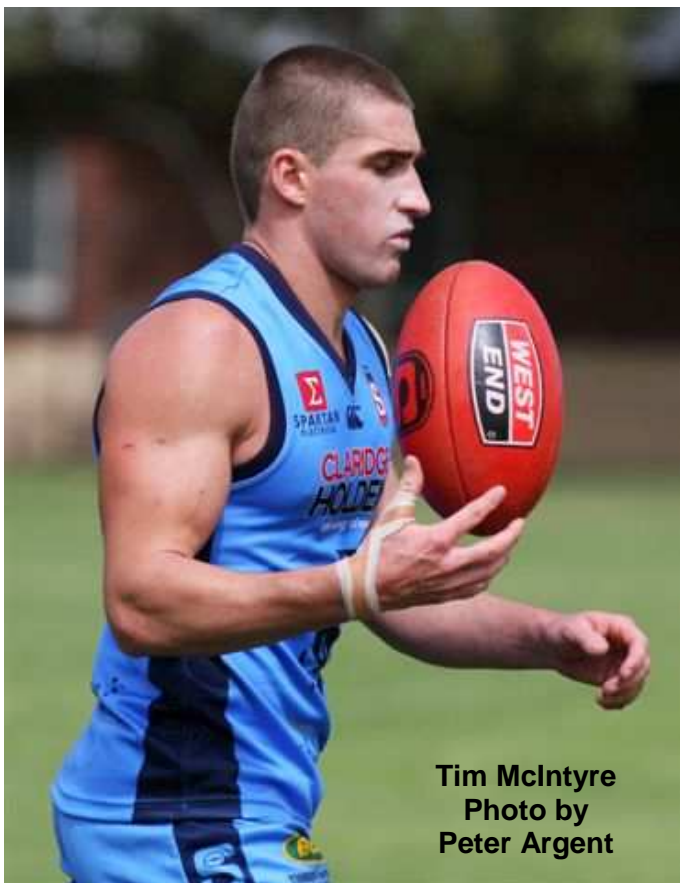

Overall, Sturt presented as a balanced outfit last week and looked the real deal – and that’s giving due consideration to the amount of “next level up” experience which was floating around Unley Oval at any given time. But in itself, that could well be the biggest challenge for Maloney each selection night.

The Double Blues dynamic duo of Angus Kurtze and Josh Jenkins wreaked havoc in the air last week and with winners at ground level all over the park combined with a desperate and dour defensive six, Sturt seem set to more than erase the memories of last season.

Matthew Duldig made his intentions clear and as the main focus up forward will play a big part in finishing off the work from further down the ground, while Tim McIntyre is going to prove a real handful if he can escape around the packs - and believe he will be the deciding factor in a Double Blues victory.

Should be a gripping contest for the first Good Friday match in SANFL history and the records will show a Sturt victory.

The Good Friday clash at Noarlunga is like most games this round hard to tip. Both are coming off impressive wins, and both on their day can be full of supprises. It will be interesting to see how many AFL players Sturt get this week, as it did have an influence in their win against the Magpies. South over ran North last week and will be primed for the challenge. Tempted to tip the Blues, but am going for the Panthers by 15 points.

Chris Kendall

The inaugural Good Friday clash in SANFL history, and with two teams coming off flying wins last week. The key to the wins for both clubs last week was their will- ingness to use their pace and break the lines into space, and to protect the ball carrier in doing so. At home, South use their pace to great effect as a rule, but their fadeout against West two weeks back will still be in the back of their minds. One of the main keys will be the shootout between Panther Andrew Ainger and Double Blue Matthew Duldig in the respective goalsquares, and the level of support they receive from their forward counterparts. Very tempted to pick Sturt here, but will just lean to the Panthers in a ripper. South by 7 points

Peter Argent

While Ron Fuller wants South’s home ground at Noar- lunga to be a fortress, in this stand alone Good Friday game Sturt with their AFL players will be a tough team to stop. The Panthers would have gained some confi- dence from their come from behind win over North. Equally Sturt will be buoyant after their exciting win over the Magpies. If the major issue is how many AFL listed players don the Sturt jumper – if it’s a lot they are a top three side - and will win. Sturt by 22 points.

Phil Aspinall

South Adelaide becomes the first SANFL club to test the waters with “Good Friday Football” against a Double Blues side that surprised a few in their close win over the Magpies. The Panthers had a great victory against North last week but, up against a Sturt side laden with AFL players, the visitors may just be too strong in this one. Sturt by 21 points

Kyle Smith

Another couple of sides who have surprised many with their matches to date. Each team has got a case for a victory, but if only for the home side advantage, I'll se- lect South. South by 18 points

ROOSTERS PREVIEW

By Phil Aspinall

Roosters' fans could have been forgiven for having a fairly strong sense of déjà vu last weekend, once again watching their side have just one bad period of football ultimately cost them victory, as was the case all too often in season 2011.

After being in control of the contest throughout the majority of the day, a six goal to nil final term from an Andrew Ainger inspired South Adelaide outfit consigned North to a first up loss on home soil and not the ideal start to a new campaign.

Acknowledging in the pre-season that lapses in games was a costly issue for his side last year, Josh Francou's side has the opportunity to right the wrongs this weekend against a talented, young Glenelg side coming off a big confidence boosting victory against the Bloods for the first time under lights at the Bay.

With a forward line boasting the likes Clint Alleyway and Lewis Johnston, the Roosters may also decide to add even more fire power to try and stretch the Tiger's defence through cult Johnny Boras who is not only coming off a six goal haul in the reserves, but in the corresponding game last year managed a bag of 8 majors.

Conversely, Glenelg has a potent forward line with the likes Brad Kirk, Roury Kirkby, Lewis Hender and Riley Milne all rotating through there so North will need to get their defensive structures right with Kerran Hall, Nathan Blee and Aaron Young to avoid another individual haul being kicked against them.

The midfield battle will be an interesting one, Captain James Allan should again rack up the possessions while Ty Allen will lead from the front as Glenelg skipper. Also, I can perhaps see gaining ascendancy in the ruck through the improving James Craig, up against big Lachlan Button from the Bays.

Whilst the Bays have some exciting youngsters making the most of the opportunity at the next level and have shown early on they will be competitive, North Adelaide will be desperate to not drop consecutive games at home to kick start their year. It would make it tough for the Roosters to gain any momentum early on.

If the home side can maintain strong intensity over the entire duration of the game, stick to their structures and keep their cool - there has been a history of bad blood between these 2 sides in the past - then the Rooster should be strong here and will bounce back with a reasonably comfortable

TIGERS PREVIEW

By John Nankivell

The Tigers got their season off to a great start last Saturday night with a rousing 22 point win over West Adelaide. This week presents another interesting challenge when they face a fired up Roosters outfit at Prospect.

North should have beaten the Panthers at home last week, but they let their guard down in the last term and were over run. The team that faces Glenelg on Easter Saturday will be eager to make up for that embarrassment.

Glenelg like the Roosters lacked consistency at times last weekend, but finished their game much stronger. In what looks to be a tight contest it is something they will have to repeat against North.

A key player the Bays will have to curb if they have any chance of victory is the ever dangerous, James Allan. Such is Allan's fitness capacity that Glenelg will most probably use a number of different taggers throughout the day. The likes of Andrew Bradley, skipper Ty Allen and maybe one or two of the younger runners will more than likely find themselves on Allan at sometime on Saturday afternoon.

Lewis Hender, who kicked five goals against West Adelaide, was the standout up forward. He will need to be at his best again this week. Ruory Kirkby was below par, while there were some great leaps he could manage only two behinds. The Bays need more from their high leaping key forward.

Consistency will be the big difference between the teams though. The side that can sustain their best football for longest will come out on top. It sounds easy, but as we know from experience it rarely is. If the Bays play the way they did in the 2nd half against West for the full four quarters they will win.

The Bays are good enough, but I have my doubts. North Adelaide might be just a little too fired up.

Tip—Roosters by 20 points.

Hard to tell which Rooster combination will front at home here, after a deflating last quarter fadeout against South when they seemed to have the match in control. They appeared to have trouble controlling the midfield supply to Andrew Ainger, whose seven goal haul guided the Panthers home.

The respective midfields look very well matched overall, but if North were to have one advantage, the Glenelg defence is still finding its structure under Kris Massie and the Rooster talls can exploit this to their advantage, provided they get quick enough supply. If James Allan is afforded room to move, then he may be the catalyst to them rebounding from their last defeat here. North by 17 points

The young Bays were up for the clash against West on Saturday night, but North aren't as bad as their last quarter fade out against the Panthers suggests. If the Roosters can start well and put some pressure on the young Glenelg side, they are in with a big chance here.

If Jimmy Allan can receive more support in the middle, North can create an upset. North by 7 points

Don Cooper

This is the mystery match of the round for mine. The Roosters got a wake up call last week while the Tigers just may have played above themselves against a side which outwardly – and incorrectly – appeared to not pay them due respect.

Given the difficulty of taking a line through each sides last hit-out, the form guide goes in the bin and I give the nod to Josh Francou's men at home. But they'll need to play FOUR quarters this week! North by 11 points.

Kyle Smith

Yet again, two sides have a case for victory, but owing to the greater experience in the North midfield, I have to go for the Roosters. North by 15 points

Phil Herden

I expect a high scoring affair which will please those watching around the state on ABC TV. How many touches will James Allan rake up this week? Hard one to pick with any confidence but Roosters need to win more and are at home. North by 9 points

The Redlegs seemed to be in control all night against Central last week, and even when the Dogs made a brief surge in the third term, Norwood seemed to be able to hover their foot above the accelerator enough to put it down when required.

The club debut of Nathan Batsanis was ultra impressive, with a near certain three Magarey Medal votes in the bag, but he had plenty of support around the ground.

Their attack still needs some tinkering, however. Luke Jericho played a highly effective dummy centre half forward role, pushing up the ground to allow space for Ben Warren to move into, but while Michael Newton loves the spectacular moments, he would be better served trying for the lesser stuff first before trying for Mark Of The Year at most contests.

It was noticeable just how quick Norwood looked to move the ball most times against Central, and when using handball to find space – rather than as a primary disposal option – they were able to gain a fast break on their opponents. Port did the same against the Eagles in round one, and broke them down quickly.

With the benefit of a week off, the Eagles will have tinkered with this and be very alert to the Redlegs doing the same at home.

The ruck department is one that the Redlegs are still a work in progress. Angus Clarke and Brady Dawe's work around the ground continues to improve, particularly the former, but against the experience of Craig Parry and to a lesser extent Christian Bock, they will need to use all their wiles to negate their influence.

REDLEGS PREVIEW

If the onball division can rove to losing rucks for the majority, and cut the space for the Eagles onballers to work into, then the centre clearances should work in Norwood's favour to increase their ascendancy.

It's a difficult one to select overall, there are plenty of good cases to be made for both teams, particularly a rebounding Eagles who will be smarting from their round one spanking. There have been some cracking encounters between these teams over the years, last year's Preliminary Final being the main exception, and this looks another on paper. At home, Norwood to just prevail, however.

EAGLES PREVIEW

By Phil Herden

As they did after Round 3 last year the Eagles find themselves in the SANFL basement after both a bye and an embarrassing early season loss under lights.

Positives were hard to find from their Thebarton Oval effort against Port on March 23rd, with further pain inflicted four days later at the Tribunal when both Justin Cicoella and Chris Kane were suspended for one game each.

Probably the most disappointing aspect was the lack of discipline displayed. In addition to the two reports Coach Michael Godden advised members they counted some 9 goals scored from frees or 25m penalties given away on the night.

So with two weeks to recover how will Woodville West Torrens respond against the Redlegs?

In recent years the Eagles have shown great resilience to bounce back quickly from disappointing results.

In 2010 they lost badly to Sturt at Woodville in Rd 23 then responded just one week later to down the Double Blues in the Elimination Final.

Then last year they were belted by Norwood in the Qualifying Final only to reverse the result by an even bigger margin in the Prelim just two weeks later., a 105 point turnaround.

And how many times did they lose to Central in a Grand Final only to keep coming back and eventually down the Doggies in 2006?

If the issues from Round One are mental not physical then expect a much better effort on Saturday.

Norwood were out rucked badly against Central last Saturday night so the Eagles via Craig Parry should get first touch of the ball.

I expect players like Mark McKenzie, Luke Powell, Scott Lewis and Adam Grocke to step up this week along with recruits Robert Shirley and Robert Eddy.

With the Reserves winning in Round 1 it will be interesting to see who the two inclusions to replace Cicoella and Kane will be.

The Eagles are rested coming off a bye whilst Norwood will be recovering from a traditionally bruising encounter at Elizabeth

Coopers Stadium also holds no fears for Woodville West Torrens having won 9 of the last 10 encounters at the ground, most in daylight.

The Eagles look a little under done at the present moment. Winless in their last two trial games and thumped by Port Adelaide in Round 1 the bye might have come at the right time last week. Norwood were great against Central, and despite some patchy trial form seem to have hit the ground running. The mix of some new and old faces appears to be working well at the Parade. This game is set to be a big test for both sides. But for mine Norwood are looking a little better at the moment. Norwood by 24 points.

Peter Argent

With Woodville-West Torrens being behind the pack preparation wise and Norwood still working on their structures, especially in attack this game could be very intriguing. Nathan Bassett's Redlegs certainly look more potent in attack and the new midfielders have added a dimension to the on-ball rotations. The Eagles can't play as badly as they did against Port two weeks ago, but Norwood look the goods at home. Norwood by 29 points.

Phil Aspinall

The Redlegs were impressive in their first win against the Dogs at Elizabeth in nine seasons but the Eagles would have spent the past fortnight seething over their first up loss to the Magpies. This should be an entertaining affair but I just feel that the Reigning Premiers will be to be too good here and take the points. Eagles by 11 points

Don Cooper

Could be a real blockbuster if the Eagles turn up in the right frame of mind!! And they will need to be right at their best to take it up to a super impressive Redlegs line up. Take out the disappointing finals campaign of 2011 and Norwood is clearly in the competition's top class. On their home turf and with Eagles needing to overcome their own minds let alone an opposing 21, I feel the 'Legs will prove too strong and have the reigning premier reeling at 0-2 by Saturday night. Norwood by 31 points

Kyle Smith

The Eagles love Norwood Oval - having won 11 out of the last 13 matches at the Parade. The problem is, every time I've used a stat for justification so far this season has gone against it. And that is of course, down to whatever happens on the day and the circumstances going into the match. The Eagles have lost Cicoella and Kane through suspension, so I might tip .. Norwood by 2 points.

Central have never lost two in a row to start the season since 1990. And have never lost three in a row at any time since Rounds 2-4 2006.

This is the first time that Central and Eagles have occupied the last two places on the ladder. The closest prior to this was in Round 13 1992 when Central was 7th and Eagles 8th.

The last time Eagles have spent two consecutive weeks on the bottom of the ladder was Rounds 17-18 1997.

Norwood, Glenelg, Port, Sturt and West are currently in the 5. This is the first time since Round 21 1982 that all five clubs have been in there. Central tipped West out in the last round to make the five, after those five teams comprised the five for 13 of the previous 15 rounds of the 1982 season.

West vs Central:

West have not kicked 100 points or more against Central in the past 28 meetings. You have to go back to Round 10 2001.

Central on the other hand, have kicked 17 scores of 100 or more in that time, yet the lowest score scored by either side was Central - with 4.6 (30) in Round 2 last year.

Eagles vs Norwood:

In the past 8 encounters, only once has a side scored 100 points plus. Norwood in the QF last year kicked 17.12 (114)
